

NUNGA SCREEN

2025 PROGRAM

EDDIE'S LIL' HOMIES – EPISODE 1 YOINKS

When the kids fall under the spell of Yoinks, a hand-held computer game from the olden days that Tal found in the hard rubbish, it's up to Eddie and Junior to try and rescue them – before they all become 'Yoinkified'! (12 mins)

About the filmmaker: Eddie Betts, is a proud Aboriginal man with connections to the Gubrun People of the Kalgoorlie Goldfields (Western Australia) and Wirangu/Kokatha People of the Far-West Coast of South Australia.

A former champion Australian Rules footballer, Eddie is the author of two children's books, his own autobiography and a seasoned television presenter. A proud father of five young children, Eddie's dedication to family and community is at the heart of all his endeavours.

From his Eddie's Lil' Homies books for pre-schoolers with stories about kindness, inclusivity and culture; to establishing the Betts Foundation to encourage and support young people from Aboriginal and Torres Strait Islander communities to reach their full potential. Eddie brings his values of community, diversity, and inclusion to all his projects.

NOONGAR BEDTIME STORIES - KODJ

Ivy and Steven meet up with Uncle Koodah to learn how to make a "kodj" (traditional axe) using science. A kodj is very important to Ivy and Steven as their grandmother comes from a town called "Kojonup" meaning "place of kodj". Ivy and Steven hold on to the kodj as it represents their traditional homelands. (6 mins)

About the filmmaker: Brooke Collard is a Ballardong/Whadjuk Noongar woman, and proud mother of a toddler. As a Producer and Writer, Brooke is creating opportunities for authentic representation for those who have been marginalised in media, such as stories of First Nations people and LGBTQIA+. Brooke and their partner Gary Hamaguchi won the AACTA Regional Pitch for 2023 with their project Reclamation, a Noongar Horror. In 2023 Brooke collaborated with Common Ground for their educational series First Nations Bedtime Stories - Noongar, and she produced short film Marlu Man which is in development as a feature film. In 2022 she was shortlisted for web series Digital Originals with Red Dress Woman. Brooke also has a successful podcast series with SBS Radio, Noongar Wellbeing which has over 16,000 plays.

Brooke wrote and produced web series Yokai, and award winning short film Aboriginal Warrior. She is also in development for Anangu Way with emerging Director and Writer Tace Stevens. Brooke is also a part of the Goolarri Writers Group, the only group of its kind in the country which supports First Nations writers to develop their ideas. She has also worked on projects such as TV Series The Great, movie Sweet As and many others. With a primary focus on facilitating stories that encourage others and help on the journey of healing. Brooke is a firm believer in 'No Stories About Us, Without Us'.

Government of South Australia

COUNTRY
ARTS
SA

CRAITBUL – A JOURNEY ACROSS BOANDIK COUNTRY

Craitbul - A Journey Across Boandik Country is a Creation Story of the Boandik people of the South-East of South Australia and describes in story form the eruptions of the volcanoes in the Berrin (Mount Gambier) region, which were witnessed by the Boandik ancestors. The story portrays the eruptions as the result of a giant, Craitbul, becoming furious and screaming and shouting and throwing rocks when his carefully dug ovens kept being put out by water rising up and smothering them. Narrated by Aunty Michelle, the animation shows the Craitbul family moving across country trying to find a safe place away from an evil spirit, eventually coming to the Berrin region. Craitbul digs several ovens all of which are put out by rising water. Each time his ovens go out Craitbul becomes furious, hurling rocks and shouting and screaming. Finally Craitbul gives up trying to dig ovens and the family settle down in a cave before going up into the sky to become guiding stars to the Boandik people. (7 mins)

About the filmmaker: Aunty Michelle Jacquelin-Furr is a Traditional Owner and Elder of Boandik country, born on Country at Berrin (Mount Gambier) and now living at Ngaranga, (Port MacDonnell) in South Australia. Aunty Michelle Jacquelin-Furr is an artist specializing in weaving, painting, writing and more recently, YouTube videos. She has written and published two books about her great grandmother Aunty Annie Brice and teaches Boandik workshops at preschools, kindergartens, primary and high schools within the Limestone Coast region.

WIRADJURI STAR DREAMING

Shot on Wiradjuri Country in Orange, NSW, this film is part of a series of dreaming stories originally commissioned by Common Ground First Nations. Jack Steele sits with elders across the community as they share the dreaming stories, he then visualises them using modern film making techniques.

Since the beginning of time, the Wiradjuri have looked to the stars for guidance. The stars are a map for life. They show us when and where to hunt, and how to find our way home. Wiradjuri Elder and cultural knowledge holder Doug Sutherland takes us on a tour through the stars as seen by Wiradjuri people for the last 60,000 years. (5 mins)

About the filmmaker: Jack Steele is a distinguished Wiradjuri man and an award-winning Writer, Director, and Producer with over 16 years of experience in the Australian film industry. Known for his distinctive storytelling, Jack has built a reputation for crafting compelling narratives that spotlight vital social issues and elevate underrepresented voices. Currently, Jack is at the forefront of groundbreaking projects, including Native Kitchen, a Boardwalk Pictures production (known for Chef's Table on Netflix), which explores Indigenous culinary traditions, and Firekeepers, a documentary examining cultural fire practices. With a portfolio that spans powerful documentaries, award-winning series, and innovative collaborations, Jack Steele is a dynamic force in global storytelling, continuing to push boundaries and inspire audiences with every project.

BARANI

Barani is a bittersweet narrative set in Warrane (Sydney Cove) 500 years ago, juxtaposing humanity's current existence in the Anthropocene with a time of harmony between humans and nature. The story, rich in historical and cultural value, prompts audiences to reconsider the history of the land under their feet. Barani intricately explores the dynamics of a mother-son relationship on the cusp of coming-of-age, emphasising themes of love, connection and independence. The symbiosis between humanity and the natural world is a crucial element, underscoring the importance of mutual care for the environment and each other. As the story unfolds, Barani encourages the audience to connect with ways of the past and review our current coexistence with nature. Barani is inspired by long termism and looks to First Nations knowledges to more deeply connect with the world around us. (7 mins)

About the filmmaker: Jake Duczynski, Gomeroi and Mandandanji man, is a writer and director committed to Indigenous representation on-screen and fortifying a space for Indigenous voices in the Australian animation industry. Jake's close collaborative approach has won multiple accolades, from Walkely's & Webby's, to Best Direction at the ADG awards. His work has been projected across the sails of the Sydney Opera House, installed at the AGNSW & MCA, broadcast on the ABC, SBS/ NITV and streamed on Netflix.

KUMARANGK – THE HINDMARSH ISLAND BRIDGE

In the 1980's, developers proposed a bridge to Kumarangk (Hindmarsh Island) starting a decade long fight against the ensuing desecration of a sacred site for the Ngarrindjeri women of South Australia. Through years of legal, governmental and public scrutiny and accusations of them lying, the women remained steadfast in their belief and knowledge that this land was sacred, and these proposals would damage this site. While the story was often national news fodder for newspapers and nightly news, the women and their legacy has largely been forgotten, except by Ngarrindjeri People. (8 mins)

About the filmmaker: Josh Trevorrow is a proud Ngarrindjeri man. He has a profoundly personal calling to storytelling. His mandate is to support a thriving sector for South Australian First Nations filmmakers in front of and behind the camera. In 2021 Josh was named Screen Australia, Centralised and Documentary Australia Foundation Fellow for his documentary project, KONDOLI. He has since produced four short documentaries.

Josh currently works as the First Nations Arts and Culture Manager for Country Arts SA where he is producing the feature documentary around the Hindmarsh Island bridge affair as part of the Kumarangk project.

WILD DOG DREAMING

From the lands of the Narungga Peoples, Yorke Peninsula South Australia comes a Creation Story about Lore and survival. Wild Dog Dreaming tells the story of a cheeky boy cursed to walk the earth as a gadli (dingo). Banished and alone, gadli travels the east coast of Guuranda, the Narungga name for Yorke Peninsula. On his travels, he meets the garrdi (emu) of the east and Winda (owl), of the west. With danger ever present, he learns important lessons about how to live and survive on Country, leaving a legacy for all Narungga children to learn from. Sung entirely in Narungga language. (26 mins)

About the filmmaker: Jacob Boehme is a critically acclaimed theatre maker and choreographer, from the Narungga and Kaurna Nations, creating work for stage, screen, large-scale public events and festivals. A graduate of Victorian College of the Arts and NAISDA (MA in Playwriting, MA in Puppetry, Diploma in Dance), Jacob has led the artistic direction of Tanderrum (Melbourne Festival), Thuwathu (Cairns Indigenous Arts Fair), The Original People's Party (Australian Performing Arts Market) and Geelong After Dark and has held positions in major institutions National Institute of Dramatic Arts and Carriageworks as the inaugural Lecturer First Nations and Director First Nations Programs.

Jacob is the writer and performer of the critically acclaimed solo work Blood on the Dance Floor, recipient of the 2017 Green Room Award Best Independent Production, the artistic director of Wild Dog, recipient of the 2023 Ruby Award for Outstanding Community Event or Project and writer and director of Guuranda, a major new work commissioned and presented by Adelaide Festival 2024.

MYSTERIOUS MAIDEN OF MONTEFIORES

In this darkly comedic exploration of historical hypocrisy, The Mysterious Maiden of Montefiores unravels the absurdity of colonial narratives. When two self-important settlers, Samuel and Benjamin, cross paths in the Australian bush, they discover they're both vying for the affections of the same woman, the enigmatic 'Mysterious Maiden'. Their competitive courtship quickly devolves into an ego-driven squabble, revealing their families' disturbing colonial legacies and the absurd justifications they use to claim superiority. Meanwhile, an Aboriginal man observes their antics, bewildered by their arrogance and ignorance. Blending satire with unsettling truths, this film challenges the way we remember the past, exposing the contradictions in how history is told and who gets to tell it. (12 mins)

About the filmmaker: Travis is a Wongutha man based on Peramangk country in the Adelaide Hills. He has worked with the likes of Stuart Beattie, Victoria Hill, Trevor Jamieson, Thibul Nettle and more while also completing several prestigious programs with groups such as Australians in Film and AFTRS and has been a finalist in several competitions.

In 2023, Travis wrote, directed, and co-produced the short film TAMBO, which played in over 12 film festivals, premiering at SXSW Sydney 2023, and playing at Adelaide Film Festival and has won two International Best Short Film Awards, and a Best Cinematography Award.